French Immersion benefits the cognitive and social development of students, as well as their opportunities for career advancement. Research demonstrates that students who successfully complete a French Immersion program attain functional bilingualism. They achieve higher levels of proficiency in reading and listening comprehension skills in their second language but also they score higher than their uni-language learners in first language. Thus their level of functional proficiency is at the advanced level in both languages.

Students also have the opportunity to receive:

- Accreditation in the International D.E.L.F. French Language Proficiency Scale recognized worldwide
- Advanced Placement credits at university or college

"Canadian immersion is not simply another successful language teaching program -- it may be the most successful program ever recorded in the professional language teaching literature."

from "Immersion: Why it Works and What it has Taught Us." Stephen D. Krashen, Ph.D., University of Southern California,

French Immersion Education:

- develops functional bilingualism—a skill that only 8% of people in the province possess
- provides international educational and career opportunities unique to bilingual students
- increases cognitive abilities: creating more flexible thinkers
- ensures "carry over" knowledge and skills that enhance communication in a student's first language
- promotes a deeper understanding and enjoyment of literature, art, music, theatre, and travel
